

Eve Henson

ATTORNEY, SENIOR COUNSEL

For over two decades, Eve Henson has represented clients in civil matters on both sides of the docket. With individuals as well as Fortune 100 corporations as clients, she has litigated widely diverse matters from complex multidistrict tort cases to straightforward contract disputes. While she is licensed in Florida and Texas, Eve has practiced in courts around the country, including the United States Supreme Court and at the International Trade Commission.

Eve has litigated cases involving antitrust allegations, aviation incidents, business torts, constitutional rights violations, environmental liability, insurance coverage, and tax liability claims. Eve also has significant experience in litigating patent claims covering diverse products and processes. She has successfully challenged and defended patented claims involving Internet, semiconductor and drug and medical device technologies.

Eve has spent her career at litigation boutiques known for their results, reputation and ingenuity, and she has chosen Koning Rubarts based on those criteria. In representing her clients, Eve doggedly pursues discovery and thoroughly examines the facts. Her intense approach allows her to identify the pivotal facts and issues that are likely to drive the case's ultimate resolution or successful trial. Eve works closely with each client to design practical plans targeted to meet the desired objectives.
